ESCAPED DEATH BY A MIRACLE

Accident in the Power Plant.

Robert Brazier Is Tossed About by a Jet of Steam.

Hurled Twenty Feet to Cement Floor, He Escapes With Three Small Fractures.

With a roar which could be heard for blocks a jet of escaping steam hurled Robert Brazier twenty feet through the air to a coment floor yesterday after-By what seemed a miracle the man escaped death. Enveloped in the condensing vapor he made his way to safety, while workmen in the central power-house of the Utah Light & Railway company, where the accident took place, ran to shut off the steam from Sounded Like Artillery.

Brazier is a station man at the powerhouse. He was fixing one of the pipos leading from the big bollers at the time of the occurrence. Suddenly this broke off at the T. The noise was like a salvo of artillery. Brazler was thrown from the plank on which he stood. He was carried across the room by the impact of the escaping vapor. Fortunately for him this was dry steam. And by further good luck the man fell on his feet. The great pipe hung over his head vibrating with the force which came through it from the boilers. The single plank on which Brazier had been standing kept

Three Bones Broken.

Dragging himself through the vaporfilled room, Brazier, in spite of three broken bones in his foot, made his way to an adjoining room. Workmen rushed from other parts of the plant to the boilers and shut off the valve leading to

If any steam had been drawn from the boller at the time the accident would have been a catastrophe. Brazier would have been scalded to death at once, and some of the other men at work would have been injured. As it was the steam that escaped was all dry, and nobody eles was at all hurt. But the roar of the escaping vapor was so great that it was impossible for the men in the power-house to hear any word that was shouted. Crowds were attracted from Main street, and even people in their houses, living two blocks from the building, heard the noise,

After the steam had been turned off from the bollers the break in the pipe was repaired. It was learned last night that the injured man was resting comfortably and progressing well.

HAD HIS REVENGE.

Why Two Women Passengers Pronounced College Man a Brute.

He had all the earmarks of a college man, and he was so comfortable as he sat on the end of the "smokers' sea" on a Salt Palace car yesterday. There were other rows of seats with no one occupying them, but when the car halted at a tioned, chose the one occupied by Mr. College Man.

He sat like a status until the women clambered laboriously to the running clambered inhoriously to the running board and glared at him, when he regret-fully slid over to the opposite end of the sent.

As the women got on they commented audibly on the subject of the "end seat hog," and then settled themselves at the open end of the seat.

At the corner of Scrond South and Main streets Mr. College Man signaled the conductor and rose. Then he glanced at the end of the seat and its occupants and hestiated. Another glance and he stepped over the back of the seat in front of him and to the running board, while the other passengers smiled audibly. The two women glared, but said nothing until the car started, when one snifted, turned to her companion and ejaculated: "Brute!"

AUTO GAVE THE CROWD THRILLS

Exciting Moments on Main Street.

Little Newsboy Had a Hairbreadth Escape From Death.

Coolness and Skill of the Chauffeur Were All That Prevented a Double Accident.

But for the cool head and steady nerves of Assistant Manager Harry Cummings of the Utah Auto company, a carload of Salt Lake society people would have been dashed into a moving street car and an unknown newsboy crushed beneath the wheels of a 2500pound motor car on Main street last evening. As it was a throng of Saturday night shoppers received a thrill that they will not forget for some time and incidentally saw an exceptional exhibition of auto driving. Nobody was injured, but only inches separated the automobile from the street car and the tiny newsboy.

Turned the Tiller.

The motor car, filled with merry excursionists, was bowling down Main street, between Second and Third South streets, shortly after 9 o'clock last evening, and as the roadway seemed to be clear, the machine was running close to the speed limit. In front of the Kenyon hotel, two street urchins were cuffling, and in their play did not notice the approaching auto.

Suddenly one of the lads broke away and started across the street directly in front of the car, which was scarcely twenty feet away and coming at a high rate of speed. Escape for the child seemed impossible and a cry of horror went up from the crowd on the street, for it seemed that the lad must be dashed to death by the crowd on the Close Call for Car.

Like a flash Chauffeur Cummings gave the tiller a vigorous turn and whirled the machine away at right angles, but in doing so pointed it straight for an uptown car that was passing. The crowd of spectators stood spellbound, for another accident seemed mminent, but Cummings quickly the street car by a few inches.

The motorman applied the emergency brakes and brought his car to a hur ried stop, but the peril was over and the auto was rolling on down the street. The newsboy disappeared before his name could be learned and the passengers in the automobile escaped identification. Cummings was "tipped off" by a friend who witnessed the affair.

CUPID BREAKS QUARANTINE.

Smallpox Only Hastened the Marriage of Popular Young Persons.

An unusual wedding was that which united Miss Florence Groesbeck and Mr. Joseph J. Cannon last Friday. The marriage was to have taken place next Wednesday, but in the meantime the groom-to-be became ill with what was thought to be typhoid fever. Miss Groesbeck made frequent calls, and it was while paying one of these visits that the doctor announced his decision that Mr. Cannon was suffering from smallpox. The family, including Miss Grossbeck, were placed under quarantine at once. This decided the young couple to have the wedding at once.

The bride sent for her wedding gown and for a party of young maidens who had assembled at the home of Miss Grace Cannon that afternoon in her honor. The guests were seated on the lawn, while under a bower of sunflowers on the porch, the ceremony was performed by Dr. W. T. Cannon, who is also an elder of the Mormon church The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Groesbeck, and the groom is a son of Mrs. Sarah J. and George Q. Cannon. A wedding trip to the Fair, as originally planned, has been post-

Loth to Leave Fort Douglas

Artillery Troopers Would Like to Serve Time and Re-Enlist Near Salt Lake City.

A general feeling of dissatisfaction is expressed among the members of the Twelfth and Twenty-second batteries over the transfer from Fort Douglas to Fort Leavenworth, Kan. Many good men will be discharged during the next few weeks, and had the batteries remained at Fort Douglas fifty per cent of the men would have re-enlisted. All express themselves as being satisfied with the post of Fort Douglas and with Salt Lake City, and all are loth to leave their present sta-tion. It is not definitely known when the hatteries will be ordered to the the batteries will be ordered to new station, but the order is expected at any date. It is learned from good authority that the Twenty-ninth battery of field ar-tillery will be stationed with the Twelfth and Twenty-second batterles at Fort Leavenworth, the three constituting the battalion, which will be under command of Maj. Andrews. It is not probable that a battalion of artillery will be stationed at Fort Douglas at any time in the

"PORT ARTHUR" IN JAIL.

Little Brown Man Is Overcome by Whisky and Patriotism. He was so wrapped up in the operations of his countrymen about Port Arthur that he could think of nothing else, and it took all the strength and agility which Jailor Joe Burbidge possessed to manage him. And at that he was only a small Jap.

Someone came to the county jall on a run yesterday afternoon and an-nounced that a Chinese was killing a woman. Burbidge answered the call on a run, and arrived at a Japanese omployment agency in the same block as the county jail just in time to see a diminutive native of the Flowery Kingdom raising a small-sized riot. Drink seemed to be the cause of the troubles, drink accentuated, perhaps, by fervid Burbldge managed to get him to the county bastile without hurting him, and then sent for the city patrol wagon. That vehicle conveyed him to police headquarters, and on the way he made glad the hearts of many small boys and astonished large numbers of older pe-destrians by yelling Japanese war cries and shouting "geddap" at the horses. He was booked by the police as a plain drunk, but this was a misiake, for few drunks have exhibited the trimmings which he did. His name is still an object of mystery, for he answers only to "Port Arthur."
